

Express

Now you can get the advantages of SolidBody™ construction and Braun quality in an economy model. Bigger than other available mini-mods, the Express features 68" headroom and 144" module length on the Ford E-350 Super Duty or F-350 chassis with dual rear wheels and GM G-3500 chassis. Available in a standard package, the Express combines functionality with economy in a package of popular features. Busy multi-vehicle squads and private services will appreciate the improved comfort and construction advantages of the Express compared to other competitive units in this price range. And with the ability to remount this module, the value extends well beyond the initial purchase.

Express

Cargo Net/Mansaver Bar: Safety for both the ambulance crew and the patients is a priority, our standard safety features include rounded vertical corners, squad bench cargo net and bacteria free counters. Combined with our SolidBody Construction process, Braun Ambulances provides a safe, reliable unit for all departments

Automatic Side Door Step: An optional side door step offers every crew member the advantage of safe entry and exit from the module. The step automatically activates when the side door is opened and retracts when it is closed without relying on crew members to manually operate the step.

Ford E-350

G.V.W.R. 11,500 lb.
Wheelbase 138"

Ford F-350

G.V.W.R. 13,000 lb.
Wheelbase 165"

Chevy G-3500

G.V.W.R. 12,300 lb.
Wheelbase 139"

Eberhard™ Handles

Storage and entry door latches take a beating on ambulances. At the scene, storage doors are frequently yanked open and slammed closed. The latch and handle mechanisms take the brunt of the force. Traditional handles are connected by tie rods to the latch, whether locked or unlocked. Our new design disengages the tie rod from the handle when the door is locked, allowing the mechanism to "free float," reducing the chance of bending or breaking the handle or tie rods, especially when pulling on a locked door handle. The deep pocket and beefy handle make it easier to grip, even when wearing gloves.

1170 Production Drive | Van Wert, OH 45891
419.232.7020 | Fax 419.232.7070 | 1.800.22BRAUN
www.braunambulances.com